ONLY IN DISNEYLAND—Dumbo, the flying elephant with aerodynamic ears, is typical of the many exciting attractions in Disneyland. For only in Walt Disney’s Magic Kingdom can youth see fantasy come to life and can age relive its youth.

Soaring high into the sky, Dumbo provides a panorama of Fantasyland, “The Happiest Kingdom of Them All.”
"Great Moments with Mr. Lincoln," a refined version of the presentation that thrilled more than three million people at the World's Fair, now is a permanent new attraction at Disneyland. After a successful premiere opening on Disneyland's Main Street, U. S. A., "Mr. Lincoln" has been acclaimed as one of the most exciting attractions in Walt Disney's Magic Kingdom.

Using a Disney-developed technique of three-dimensional animation, called "Audio-Animatronics," the Lincoln presentation also employs the latest in film projection, staging and stereophonic sound developments.

As the guests enter the foyer of the Opera House, they are greeted by a large picture window, gracefully framed in red drapes. Stepping up to the window, they look out over a magnificent panorama of the United States Capitol with its beautiful surroundings. Countless diamond-like lights shine from the Capitol windows and city as twilight settles over Washington.

Next, the visitors step into the Blue Room, where they are treated to a six-minute autobiographical presentation, taken from Lincoln's own words. His story is illustrated by full color art murals, especially created by Walt Disney Productions. These murals are projected onto a 28-foot-long screen.

After learning about Lincoln's early life leading up to the White House, the guests are invited into the theatre to spend a few "Great Moments with Mr. Lincoln."

As the curtains open on the seated figure of Mr. Lincoln, he appears in deep contemplation. After he is introduced by the narrator, he "comes to life." He rises to his feet and delivers his address with complete coordination of speech and movements, including many mannerisms of the sixteenth President.

A dramatic, soul-stirring finale finds Lincoln again seated, now silhouetted against the imposing dome of the Capitol. It is dawn, and the early morning sun casts its rays through a profusion of white clouds.

A chorus of voices, joined in harmony, seem to move through the theatre in an invisible procession, immersing the audience in a stereophonic choral presentation of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Gradually, the crimson and white clouds behind Lincoln dissolve into a symbolic representation of the American Flag, with the last stars of the night against a field of blue.

Development of the Lincoln figure began with the modeling of the head in a plastic clay. The figure was later covered with a flexible "skin" in order to maintain the original details.

The Lincoln figure is capable of 48 separate body actions, as well as 17 head motions and facial expressions. These movements are controlled by a magnetic tape, which has up to 32 channels, thus permitting as many as 438 separate actions at one time.

The figure stands approximately six feet, four inches and weighs about 140 pounds. The hair and beard were created by a professional wig maker. Hands were cast from the hands of a man of comparable size. Eyes were created by WED artists, using techniques similar to those employed by prosthetic eye manufacturers, and dental techniques were used to design the gums and teeth.

The Opera House has been completely redesigned especially for the

A new concept in elegant dining was unveiled at Disneyland this summer with the opening of the Plaza Inn on Main Street, U.S.A.

Already a favorite with the thousands of people who enjoyed Disneyland's Summer '65 Celebration, the Plaza Inn is a major addition to the Magic Kingdom's ever-growing facilities.

The plush, Victorian Plaza Inn Restaurant is one of the highlights of Disneyland's year-long Tencennial Birthday Celebration.

Lavish Settings

Lavish application of luxurious red brocades, gleaming crystal, dramatic stained glass and generous use of mirrors create a most magnificent Victorian atmosphere in the antique-studded foyer and two large dining rooms. This theme also prevails on two peripheral dining porches and a pair of spacious, umbrella-shaded dining terraces, which flank the entrance promenade.

Walt Disney's Purpose

The purpose of the new Plaza Inn is to provide Disneyland guests with an elegant buffet restaurant featuring succulent dishes with prices that fit everyone's budget, according to Walt Disney.

Stepping inside to the Grand Foyer, guests find themselves surrounded...
Come see the sea show by the sea shore!

Whales dance! Porpoises play ball! Seals show off! Penguins, walruses, sharks, exotic fish entertain! The show never stops; daily, 10 till sunset! Neither does the fun. One admission covers everything. Kids under 7 free. Parking free.

The rotisserie offers barbecued or roasted meat and fowl, and nearby are beautifully-appointed tables displaying subordinate courses, along with spreads of extravagantly decorated desserts.

Hostess Seating
After guests have made their selections, they are met by a hostess. She assists them to comfortable seating for their meal. Guests may choose to sit in the dining rooms, on the porches or on terraces.

This no-menu, no-check arrangement permits guests to spend virtually all of their dining time enjoying their meals. In addition, it also gives them the pleasure of seeing the food displays as they make their selections.

Palatial Dining Rooms
Guests eating in the Plaza Inn dining rooms find a unique interior decor. Seated on rarely-found gold mohair chairs, guests dine against a backdrop of fine velvet and coral-hued draperies.

Each of the two dining rooms features its own solarium, a glassed-enclosed conservatory with potted palms, ferns and baskets of pastel flowers. The solarium, rarely found in homes and restaurants today, was by crimson appointments accented by authentic antiques complemented by specially created furnishings. One of the most interesting items is a superbly hand-carved, gilded wooden wall clock and matching barometer, the work of master-craftsmen executed in 1840 at Versailles. These pieces, in the style of Louis XV, introduce the Plaza Inn’s boy-on-a-dol-phin motif found in many of its furnishings.

The seventeen wall-mounted bronze and crystal sconces, each crowned with a rosette, were designed especially for the Inn. They utilize world-famous Baccarat crystal and Parisian bronze. The twenty-four basket chandeliers also are of Baccarat crystal and bronze.

Stained Glass Canopies
Guests move from the foyer to the food display and serving areas. Beneath canopies of multi-colored, custom-created stained glass is a large variety of food arranged on rare Norwegian rose marble in buffet style. There are two five-foot-diameter, three-tiered rotating servers garnished with a variety of salads. Each is crowned by a glittering antique gold epergne that has been converted into a fountain.
a popular gathering place for family and friends during Queen Victoria's time.

Nostalgic Terrace Dining

Guests sitting on the terraces dine by nostalgic lamplight furnished by 17 seven-jet lamp posts. These authentic posts were cast from an original found in an old New Orleans courtyard. Each of the 100 tables will provide candlelight from a ruby-shaded lamp on a marble and bronze base.

One of the two dining rooms has been designed for use on occasion for private banquets of up to 100 guests. The second dining room will accommodate 66 diners, the porches will seat 38 and the terraces 174 each, bringing the Plaza Inn's total guest capacity to 602.

At the entrance, which separates the two dining porches, is a magnificent bronze and frosted glass lamp, created by English artisans in 1800. A pair of smaller versions of this fixture, made at the same time, light the porches.

Operated by a 50-man staff, the Plaza Inn accommodates between 3,000 and 4,000 diners daily.

New Bakery Included

In addition to the restaurant and kitchen areas, the Plaza Inn also houses Disneyland's own 2,120 square foot bakery, which serves all other food facilities in the Magic Kingdom with fresh baked goods daily.

Plan to enjoy lunch or dinner at the Plaza Inn during your next visit to the Magic Kingdom.

Man has been fascinated for centuries by the watery world that covers five-eighths of his planet. The ocean depths have long provided Man with food and transportation, but they have remained little understood and appreciated by most of us.

Within the past few years, several recreational attractions have sprouted throughout the country using the seas and their inhabitants as a source of entertainment for visitors. Sea World, on Mission Bay in San Diego, California, is the newest, and one of the best, of these oceanaria and marine-life show centers.

22 Acres of Fun

Covering 22 acres, and built at a cost of $4.5 million, Sea World presents a varied entertainment bill of fare featuring nearly 100 different species of fish as well as many performing mammals.

Perhaps the most unusual of Sea World’s many attractions is the Theater of the Sea, an immense underwater theater-in-the-round. With seats on all four sides of the 45-foot square glass tank, 900 spectators can view the show through 20-foot picture windows. In a humorous show scripted and set to music, Sea World’s dolphins demonstrate both their superior intelligence and surprising grace. Also appearing with the dolphins in the 20-minute show are the beautiful Sea Maids.

As multicolored spotlights pierce the 160,000 gallons of filtered sea water, spectators enjoy a three-act show demonstrating the versatility and learning capacity of the dolphins.

Unusual Hydrofoil Boats

Another unusual feature of Sea World is the two Richfield Hydrofoil boats, each carrying 28 passengers on a sea-skimming voyage around the lagoon. After leaving the Sea World dock, the hydrofoils rise slowly from the water as they gain momentum, so that eventually their hulls race four feet above the surface of the bay. A maximum speed of 35 miles an hour is reached during the six mile trip.

The Sea World hydrofoils are the first built on the West Coast to be licensed for commercial use by the Coast Guard. Each is powered with 370-horsepower marine diesel engines and weighs eight and one-half tons.

Outdoor Lagoon Show

In the outdoor lagoon, the dolphins act out another drama, centered around the life of a castaway pilot. Visitors enjoy the 20 minute show from the 1,300 person stadium overlooking the bay-level lagoon.

The well-trained dolphins leap to a height of 20 feet, “tailwalk” across the width of the lagoon with their entire bodies out of the water, supported by their powerful tail flukes. Sea World plans to teach the bottle-nosed dolphins new routines in the future.

Other inhabitants of the lagoon are a pilot whale and two huge elephant seals who seem to have no aim in life other than to bask in the bright Mission Bay sun.

More Than a Fishbowl

In line with Sea World’s policy of adding “show” elements to all of its attractions, the Sea Grotto is more than just a large fishbowl containing hundreds of rare fish. As guests walk through the cool darkness of the Grotto, they watch a Sea World Sea Maid swimming among the specimens. Through a special communication device, the Sea Maid points out various fishes and explains interesting and little-known facts about them to the guests peering through the large picture windows.

There are four tanks in the Sea Grotto. The first tank contains many of the fishes which inhabit the waters off the California coast. Seals and sea lions frolic in the second tank, while exotic tropical fishes swim in the warm 80 degree third tank. The fourth tank features close-up views of Sea World’s dolphins, while an announcer tells of the mammals’ superior intelligence.

Japan in California

A little bit of Japan is brought to Southern California by the Murata Pearl Company’s Japanese Village, a two-acre development in the northeast corner of Sea World.

In a 14 feet deep tank measuring 72 by 42 feet, six Japanese girls in native costumes dive for oysters. Divers will select oysters pointed out by spectators who wish to buy one for the pearl it contains. The pearl is then polished and mounted.

Nearby, an authentic Japanese ceremonial bell tower contains a 1,500 pound bronze bell which visitors toll by pushing the swinging log “Shumoku” against the outside of the bell.

The Japanese Village also has a Demonstration House with an educational pearl display, a Gift Shop and Teahouse, and a waterfront stage with traditional Japanese dancing.

Other Features

Other Sea World features include the Hawaiian Punch Village refreshment center, the dolphin and whale training school, the penguin show, the seal and sea lion show and the Fresh Water Dolphin Pool.

A star pupil in the dolphin and whale school is 10-foot, two-inch Samson, the largest dolphin in captivity. “Big Sam” adds to the excitement around the pool by jumping his 950 pounds entirely out of the water and splashing anyone who’s too close to the edge.

Samson, believed to be more than 15 years old, is also learning hook shots and set shots for a basketball game.

Samson was captured in the Gulf of California and brought to San Diego by truck. As well as being the largest dolphin in captivity, he is also the oldest.
Sea World is open daily from 10:00 a.m. until dusk. A single admission fee includes all of Sea World's attractions with the exception of the hydrofoil ride. Adult admission is $2.25, junior (13-17) admission is $1.25, while children (5-12) are admitted for 60 cents. The hydrofoil ride is fifty cents for those 13 and over and twenty-five cents for children 6-13 years.

Admission to the 1,000-car parking lot is free.

With its many varied shows, all based on the sea and its inhabitants, Sea World in Mission Bay is a major addition to Vacationland's most famous commodity: fun and recreation.
UNIVERSAL CITY STUDIOS OPENS ITS GATES TO SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA VISITORS

For many years, visitors and vacationers to Southern California have desired to visit an actual motion picture and television film studio. Now that desire can be realized at Universal City Studios, the world's largest and busiest motion picture and television complex. Universal City Studios has opened its gates for visitors with a complete studio tour program which shows you both where and how motion pictures are made.

The visit to the 410-acre studio has two major features. First, visitors take an hour-and-a-half tour aboard comfortably designed GlamorTrams. A specially trained guide on each GlamorTram provides a detailed commentary throughout the tour as you wind your way through the various "locations" where many of the world's most popular movie and TV shows are filmed. The tour takes you through areas and outdoor settings representing sections of America, China, France, Germany, Mexico, Latin America, American jungles, Pacific Islands and other "authentic" locales. Visits inside a sound stage and a star's dressing room are included on the tour itinerary.

Outside sets visited by the GlamorTram include "McHale's Navy," "The Munsters," "The Virginian," "Laredo" and other sets familiar to movie and TV viewers. You can make your own movie and still pictures all along the route.

The second phase of the visit begins when your GlamorTram returns to Universal Studio Center. Here in this all-new multimillion dollar area you can see how illusions are created in the "behind-the-cameras" world of motion picture production.

You can visit the Pavilion of Glamor to see the make-up demonstration and the Hollywood Fashion and Costume Show; play in a push-button snowstorm; bring Herman Munster to "life" in Grandpa Munster's lab; take pictures of the Creature from the Black Lagoon "underwater"; witness a live-action stunt demonstration; walk "The War Lord Tower"; and photograph the exotic areas resembling Hong Kong's waterfront and the panoramic vista from Lookout Point.

Universal City Studios is located at the Hollywood Freeway and Lankershim Blvd., approximately ten minutes from the central Hollywood area, fifteen minutes from downtown Los Angeles. Public bus transportation is available and Tanner Gray Line Tours have frequent daily schedules to Universal City Studios.

One admission ticket includes all attractions in Universal Studio Center and the Universal Studio Tour.

Reservations are not required. For additional information please telephone TR. 7-1311.

Admission: Adults: $3.00; Juniors (12-17): $2.25; Children (7-11): $1.60; Children under 7 are FREE.
A Tencennial visit to Disneyland is a never-to-be-forgotten adventure for the young and the young-at-heart of all ages. A variety of fun and delight awaits the Disneyland guest in 1965, when the Magic Kingdom will be celebrating ten years of bringing pleasure to nearly fifty million people from all over the world.

Disneyland's many attractions and adventures are divided into five areas: Main Street, USA, a re-creation of a typical 1890-vintage thoroughfare; Adventureland, where guests may explore yet-to-be-tamed wilderness areas of the world; Frontierland, where the saga of a young America moving West is brought to life; Fantasyland, the Happiest Kingdom of Them All; and Tomorrowland, where 1980 becomes reality today.

All of these lands, and the many features within them, are designed for but one purpose: to make your visit to Disneyland a happy and memorable one.
MAIN STREET USA
A faithful reproduction of a midwestern America turn-of-the-century thoroughfare. Stroll through the apothecary shop, stop at the old-fashioned ice cream parlor, watch the portrait artists at work and enjoy the sights and sounds of a by-gone era. Here are fascinating exhibits and unique shopping opportunities for your enjoyment.

ADVENTURELAND
Now you can enjoy the thrills and excitement of a safari to the exotic corners of the earth, right here in Disneyland. The wondrous Enchanted Tiki Room, the ever-popular Jungle Cruise and the towering heights of the Swiss Family Tree House all beckon the adventurous guest, while the Tahitian Terrace serves authentic Polynesian food.

FANTASYLAND
Through the Sleeping Beauty Castle lies "The Happiest Kingdom of Them All." With a variety of attractions drawn from Walt Disney movies, there is delight for the young of all ages. Dumbo, Alice in Wonderland, Snow White, Peter Pan and many more come alive in the adventures.

FRONTIERLAND
Here Walt Disney has re-created the hardships and wonders that faced the early pioneers as they struggled to create the great land that is today America. In this exciting land you experience a river voyage aboard the majestic Mark Twain or the swift sailing vessel Columbia. Enjoy an exciting trip through Nature's Wonderland in the comfort of a Western Mine Train or on the back of a sturdy mule.
of Fantasyland. The King Arthur Carrousel, the Flying Tea Cups and the Storybook Land voyage are also popular attractions here. Perhaps the stellar attraction in Fantasyland, however, is the exhilarating Bobsled ride down the icy slopes of the awesome Matterhorn Mountain.

TOMORROWLAND

Here the world of 1980 is brought to life today. The Disneyland-Alweg Monorail System cruises twenty feet above the ground while the Submarine Voyage explores Earth's last frontier: the ocean depths. Here one also can take a journey to the moon, hop aboard a flying saucer and ride a freeway of the future.

All Americans, whether descended from those who arrived on the Mayflower in 1620, or from those who crossed the Atlantic on a cattle boat in 1920, have cause to be proud of our nation’s history. It is to the hardy pioneers who braved and conquered the American wilderness that Frontierland is dedicated.

Frontierland always has been an area of special interest to Disneyland visitors. For this particular section of the Park represents something very close to all Americans—the pioneering saga of the West. In Frontierland, the visitor sees a reflection of the life and lore of the Old West, recreated for the delight of Disneyland guests.

As he strolls through the wooden stockade gates into Frontierland, the visitor leaves 1965 behind and travels back into the days of ’76, when wooden rails and hitching posts were used instead of parking meters.

Frontierland offers many varied attractions for the adventuresome Disneyland visitor. One of the most popular is the Mine Train through Nature’s Wonderland.

Constructed at a cost of more than two million dollars, Nature’s Wonderland authentically re-creates more than 200 birds, animals and reptiles in their natural habitat. Each setting in Nature’s Wonderland is taken from one of Walt Disney’s famous award-winning True-Life Adventure films, such as “Beaver Valley,” “Bear Country,” “The Living Desert,” and “The Olympic Elk.”

As the visitor boards one of the four 74-passenger trains, he notices the little mining town of Rainbow Ridge with its general store, newspaper office and assay office. Bidding civilization farewell, the train passes through a tunnel and emerges in Nature's Wonderland. Beaver building a dam, bears scratching and looking for honey, and battling elk stags and howling coyotes—all are a part of Nature’s Wonderland. Past 75-foot high Cascade Peak with its three huge waterfalls, through Balancing Rock Canyon and under Old Faithful Geyser, the train chugs along.

Climaxing the ride are the beautiful Rainbow Caverns. As the train enters a dark tunnel, the visitor hears cool winds whistling through the caverns. Then, as if by magic, the near-silence is broken by the sound of rushing water and the dark is interrupted by colorful streams of water playing over the rocks. Brilliant purples and reds, muted yellows and blues, spriightly greens and oranges light up the cavern with an eerie but breath-taking splendor. Falling in beautiful patterns and splashing into multi-colored pools, the Rainbow Caverns seem to take the viewer to another world, one of mystery and romance.

There is another Western-style way to see Nature’s Wonderland, aboard a sturdy mule pack. The pack mules wind in and out of the Saguaro Cactus Forest, Sandstone Cliffs and Rattlesnake Gulch. The gentle, plodding pace of the docile mules bring to mind the hardships the early settlers faced without the modern conveniences of today.

No matter how guests choose to see it, Nature’s Wonderland is one of the most beautiful sights in Disneyland.

The Golden Horseshoe is one of the most popular shows in Disneyland. In this replica of a frontier saloon, Pepsi-Cola presents the Golden Horseshoe Revue, a vaudeville show with a rootin’ tootin’ real Western flavor.

Rapidly approaching the 15,000 performance mark, this combination of comedy and musical entertainment is constantly filling the Golden Horseshoe with gales of laughter. The Revue stars Wally Boag, Fulton Burley and Betty Taylor as Miss Sue Slue Foot Sue. It also features the Golden Horseshoe singing waitresses and a singing bartender.

Songs such as “Won’t You Come Home, Bill Bailey,” and “Clancy Lowered the Boom” and the ever-

VACATIONLAND
Lincoln show. It now houses an impressive 500-seat theatre, a beautifully decorated foyer and the sedate Blue Room.

Special Disney techniques for sound reproduction utilize a system of hidden directional speakers throughout the theatre. Each speaker is able to function autonomously, thus allowing the voices of the choir to “move forward” during the finale.

A dozen doors, automatically operated by the “Audio-Animatronic” tape, on which the show is programmed, admit guests to the theatre from the left side. Opposite are 12 exit doors, also controlled by the tape.

As one group files out of the theatre, another is admitted. Meanwhile, still another group is in the Blue Room, being entertained by the prologue presentation.

Shows are scheduled on a 12-minute cycle, thus allowing five complete performances per hour. The theatre can accommodate 2,500 people each hour under this arrangement.

“Mr. Lincoln” was developed by WED Enterprises, Inc., the architectural and engineering subsidiary of Walt Disney Productions.

It is especially appropriate that this attraction is being introduced at Disneyland in 1965, just 100 years after President Lincoln left his indelible impression on our American culture.

The Western Frontier—Disneyland Style

present traveling salesman routines evoke memories of the vaudeville days of the past for old-timers and introduce youngsters to a "new" form of entertainment.

For the adventurous explorer Frontierland offers Tom Sawyer's Island, where tree houses and secret caves offer hours of diversion. Tom Sawyer's Island Rafts provide the only transportation to and from the island. The numerous tunnels delight children, as they wriggle from one passage to another. Fort Wilderness, modeled after the early day forts that protected the frontier settlers, marks the last outpost of civilization on the island. The rock playground, consisting of Castle Rock Teter-Toter Rock and Merry-Go-Round Rock, is a great source of enjoyment.

The Mark Twain River boat is considered by many to be the most beautiful sight in the Park. Modeled after the sternwheeler which used to churn up and down the Mississippi River, the Mark Twain gives the visitor to Frontierland a first-hand look at the wilderness just beyond civilization as it paddles around the Rivers of America.

As the large white paddlethumper rounds the bend and travels past Fort Wilderness, guests see wild elk, a renegade band of Indians attacking a white settler, the friendly Indian Village and much more. The enchantment of the backwoods is vividly recreated by means of animated creatures of all sizes and shapes.

The authenticity with which Frontierland has created marks it as one of the highlights of Disneyland. It is a step into our nation's proud past, it is a re-living of great moments in history, it is the American story.
